

How did you decide on doing your PhD rather than just your masters?

When did you realize you wanted to study biochemistry and was it what you planned on studying?

Why did you choose to do research and how did you decide against another possible career?