

How did you know you wanted to research in the field of immunology?

How did you manage your time while trying to get your MD; how did you stay on top of everything?

When did you know that you wanted to focus on research and not anything else; what influences that choice?